BURNABY BANK ROBBED, THREE SUSPECTS HELD

VANCOUVER (CP) - Three suspects were arrested today a short time after a suburban Burnaby branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia was robbed by fast-moving bandits.

Police said the amount taken from the bank could be as high as $10,000 but bank officials refused to confirm this.

Bank employees said two men, masked and carrying revolvers, entered the bank while a third waited outside in a car. One man jumped over the counter and scooped up money from the cash drawers in the tellers' wicket and put it in a sack.

Laos Posts Under New Attacks

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) -North Viet Nam Communist troops have crossed into Laos and attacked three army posts in Phong Saly province, the army said today. Government troops suffered losses but the imber was not announced.

A communique said the three posts were clustered 20 miles inside the Laos border directly west of Dien Bien Phu, where the French Army made its last bloody stand during the Indo-Chinese War in 1954.

The attacks in the far northern province occured Tues-day night but the news was not received at Vientiane army headquarters until today, a pokesman said. Communica tions difficulties have plagued beginning of the fighting.

MINOR FLAREUPS

Harassing action by Red guerrillas also was reported in two provinces which had been quiet for several weeks.

Two small Laotian Army posts were hit in Khammou ane province 150 miles east of this capital. The army said it found the bodies of two Communists. Four wounded guerrillas were taken prisoner.

Other small harassing attacks were reported in Savan-nakhet province southeast of Vientiane.

There were no combat reports today from San Neua where government forces have lost control over a large area around the town of Sam Neua, the northern defence headquarters.

Mr. Macmillan Sets the Day

MR. MACMILLAN HAS ENDED Britain's most popular political guessing game by announcing that the general election will be held on October 8.

Exercising his prerogative, he has chosen a time which appears most favorable to his government.

Britain has shown a tremendous surge forward. Employment is up. Exports are up. Gold reserves 'are up and, most important, output per man in the production field is up. The public is buying more consumer goods and more goods are available to it. Credit has been eased and the standard of living is

The prime minister has every reason to draw these conditions to the notice of the electors. He was a chief architect in their creation.

Britain's fortunes were at a low ebb when he took office. The disastrous Egyptian campaign of Sir Anthony Eden was a hot and searing wound to the British spirit, Economically the country was in parlous shape.

Macmillan applied sharp measures of austerity. The patient Briton did without and grumbled.

The rewards of this imposed self-denial are becoming apparent. Living is easier. The country is far from fat, it has not solved all its problems, but a reviving confidence is reported there and the recently announced treasury statement is encouraging. the international field Mr. Macmillan initiated the current thaw which, though it may be errporary only, has led to some reduction in cold war tensions. His trips, specifically his mission to Moscow, variously considered a limited success and a failure, led to other meetings between heads of state. They in turn may yield valuable results provided too much optimism is not attached to them.

As he goes to the country Mr. Macmillan appears to be appealing to the electors from a position of strength. It is doubtful if the Laboropposition can match this approach to the voters.

Socialism loses some of its mag-etism when times are good. Its attractiveness to the uncommitted voter - the person who decides the election - wanes when conditions become more tolerable.

The opposition is also facing certain internal strains. The debate on the predominant influence of the Trades Union Congress on the Labor Party will probably continue Division of opinion on nuclear wear ons and bases is not completely

But there does appear to be one happy development emerging as the election nears. Both Labor and Conservatives have outlined proposals for more gracious living in an age of increased leisure. Labor's suggestions are winning more applause from the critics than those of the government.

With local issues intervening and almost a month to go before ballcts are marked, no one at this distance from the scene has any license to venture firm predictions. At the same time Mr. Macmillan seems to have chosen his time wisely for the battle at the polling booths. Ce :tainly his prospects are infinitely brighter than they were in the early days of his assumption of office.

Planning In Sagnich

SAANICH COUNCIL HAS MOV-ed to draw its town planning or-ganization into line with requirements of municipal legislation passed at the last session of the provincial house.

This could mean sweeping changes in the personnel of the town. planning board, though that is not an inevitable result of the council's action. At all events, the change now. being made through a new bylaw does, not, and is not intended to, eliminate entirely all town planning machinery in the municipality.

Any move to discard planning Saanich. No. other part of Greater Victoria needs planning as does the northern municipality with its rapid development. And in no other part of the community are the opportunities for effective planning more

Saanich is still growing, has large vacant areas and is in a posi-tion to design its growth in such a ts of expansion will not be prohibitive. If no regard whatever were paid to planning, scatter-gun development, entailing certain essential services, could bankrupt the municipality — or at least thrust an intolerable tax burden on property owners to pro-

The fact that Saanich has introduced a new bylaw which admittedly could alter the existing planning board is not the hazardous element introduced into discussion of the question by the council. The danger arises from the point of view expressed by some councillors who seem to be against planning as a point of principle. They apparently take the position that any regulation is an infringement on the rights of the individual. So, it is. So, in its own way, also is that section of the law which exacts a penalty from anyone caught murdering another.

The idea that any infringement on the rights of the individual is wrong in all circumstances does not stand up. It may have been a justifiable attitude in pioneering days when unlimited room and apparently inexhaustible land area were taken for granted. That situation no longer prevails. The use one in-dividual makes of his land is of direct concern to his neighbor—and neighbors obviously are going to live closer together in Saanich.

It is regettable as well as unrealistic to hear one councillor say that Saanich is purely a work-ingman's district. Some of the finest homes on the south end of the Island are in Saanich and that municipality has no monopoly on modest dwell-

The objective of planners is to see that development proceeds along well considered lines, that mistakes that can be avoided are avoided and that the long range vision is kept before the district as it grows and becomes more Six Areas densely populated.

The alternative in Saanich is obvious. It can, if it so desires, grow like Topsy. But if it does, the future costs will be far higher than Topsy

The Ultimate Weapon

WITH A LAUNCHING LITTLE W different from other, lesser flights, the United States yesterday achieved a successful prototype of what has been called the "ultimate weapon." With that test flight the world enters a new phase of armament — the intercontinental missile with nuclear warhead.

It may well be that already the Soviet Union has secretly perfected this weapon. Numerous experts be-lieve so. But the publicized American test makes it a known reality.

With a comparatively few of these missiles one country could render uninhabitable another country on the opposite side of the earth. That is the military goal towards which both East and West have been striving since atomic bombs and missiles were in their first experimental stages. Now it has been reached.

Eventually a defence may be devised against this weapon. It is not likely to be perfect, and the destructiveness of the nuclear missile will diminished, not eliminated. That is the world in which we now shall

FROM VIENTIANE, LAOS

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Danger Grave and Urgent

THE danger created by the renewed Communist aggression against Laos is certainly grave and may be very aggression took the form of an invasion of Laos by not more than 2,500 troops from Communist Viet Nam. In a normal country it would be outrageous but hardly dangerous. Laos, however, is far from being a normal country. Laos' small army of 25,000 men, almost devoid of heavy weapons of any sort, with no reliable or rapid communications system, is no normal national army, even although it is generally a tough and courageous army.

Laos' terrain, mountainous, jungle-clad, and almost wholly without roads, is not a normal national landscape. Laos' population, almost 50 per cent composed of tribal peoples doubtfully attached to Laos, is not a normal national population.

Strange War

All of these abnormalities are very heavy initial handicaps in a-war like this strange war in Laos—a war against local Communist dissidents fighting in the jungle as guerrilla units, with the strong support of invading Communist units from North Viet Nam.

The first important thing to note about this war is that the invasion from North Viet Nam is the key fact. Until the first border crossings occurred on July 15, the Lao government and army were making good progress in unifying the country and liquidating all Communist influence.

The first border crossings in July had immediate effects. They created an acute military problem in the two northern provinces. Phong Saly and Samneua.

The first effect, therefore, was to drive the Lao army to strip all the other prov-inces, in order to reinforce the two invaded provinces.

Meanwhile, of course, the remaining Communist undergrounds in the rest of the country went over into open rebellion as guerrillas. The second effect of the invasion in the north was to leave the Lao army with insufficient resources in the rest of the country to stamp out the suddenly-created centres of guerrilla.

Thus something like six fairly important areas of Communist guerrilla power came into being, including an important area in Luang-Prabang Province, on the approaches to the royal capital.

The first invasion might have done the job, in fact, if the Laos government had not intercepted a general order from the Communist executive committee for Laos, signed by the military member, Col. Sing Rapo. This order, intercepted in May, gave the detailed program of the present aggression. As a result the government moved preventatively.

One of the two Communist battalions in the Lao army, left over from Laos' neutral period, was quickly disarmed (The other, unfortunately, escaped to play a big role in the present fighting.) The provincial undergrounds were also greatly weakened by preventive arrests and executions of the better known ter-

Quite largely for this reason, the inltial aggression on July 15 did not pro-duce the expected results. The northern provinces did not immediately fall to the

Renewed Invasion

Phong Saly, in fact, had been just about cleaned up again when the re-newed invasion occurred. The guerril las in the other provinces, although they could not be stamped out, also failed to spread their influence and cause general

Just before getting the news of the second invasion of Laos, the commander of the Lao army, the tough and brave Gen. Ouane Rathikoune, told me:

"The army is stretched to the utmost but I am sure we can win this war if no more units come in from North Viet Nam. Everything depends on that."

When the general said this, the second invasion of Laos had already occurred, although his lack of communications had kept the grim news from him. With the Lao army already "stretched to the utmost," the design of the second invasion is obviously to stretch the limited military resources of Laos beyond the snapping point. It is easy to see, more over, how this design can succeed.

Heavy Weapons

Twenty-five hundred men with heavy eapons may not seem like a great many men. But this small number is a serious threat to the government's limited local forces with few heavy weapons sharply restricted possibilities of WE were among the first genuine forcement. reinforcement.

Thus the invaders may perhaps take amneua Province at least, for example. If Samneua falls, the effect all over the country will be terrible and instantane-

Fence-sitters will flock to the guerrilla centres. As another example, the guer-rilla forces in neighboring Luang Pra-bang Province, strengthened by new recruits, now having Samneau as a rear base area, may perhaps gain enough power to threaten the king's city of Luang Prabang.

In short, this can be a very bad busi-ess indeed. Although the new invasion of Laos has taken place in remote moun-tains and all but impenetrable jungles, It is still aggression, as naked, as flag-rant as a Soviet-East German attack on Western Germany. (c) 1959 New York Herald Tribune Inc.

Tips and Living Costs

In a recent issue of your paper I took exception to a statement in an article by your correspondent in England, Wallace Reyburn, that contrary to the situation prevailing in that country, tips were not expected in Canada, because of the high rates of pay prevailing here.

In the "Weekend Magazine" of your issue of August 22nd, there is an article "Women Are Not Stingy Tippers", which does not beat about the bush but goes so far as to say what tips are looked for "from the traveling public in this country."

I hope that Mr. Wallace Reyburn will have his attention drawn to this article so that his memory may be refreshed in the way of life in what I think is his home country.

Having just returned from a visit to England and traveled there quite extensively. I came to the conclusion that by and large and considering "welfare" benefits, employees there are as well off as those here when the cost of living is taken into consideration L. JEFFERSON

To Reduce Labor Friction

It seems that within a few days the strike will be over. Everyone will say at last, but the damage is already done. In another two months snow will fall on the mountains and the loggers will be out of work again.

Here are a few points from an article on labor and management in socialist Sweden:

In 1958, Canada lost 1,700,000 workdays through strike warfare compared to 4,500 warkdays in Sweden. Both the Swedish organizations which guard the bastions of labor or private industry enjoy high prestige and a considerable measure of disciplinary power over their memberships,

Because of this, and even more from the fact that all annual agreements between companies and workers cannot be broken in the meantime, labor management conflicts, particularly those of local inspiration have been made next

The article further stated that the Confederation of Unions will then meet the Federation of Employers around a board table and press their case, even to the extent of an all-night debate. When the two parties have finished their business and made sure of labor

Would it work here? Let the politicians figure that one out for them-selves. As someone told me the other day, it would be good for us to take a lesson from the European countries. That would apply equally to the European countries taking a lesson from

Let us face it, unions are here to stay and the operators know it.

There are several means of improving unions. The first is to vote for candidates who will put the welfare of the country above petty politics. Another remedy is to introduce college courses in union management and the training of union leadership which will be interested in the welfare of both men and industry,

Awakening

The news from Laos these days underscores a new kind of factor in in-ternational affairs. That factor is the rise of problems between the new Asian states themselves,

There used to be a theory that all Asian troubles were due to the Euro-pean imperialisms, and that with the throwing off of the imperialisms Asia would enjoy native harmony and peace.

This naive theory, of course, had the vocal backing of the Communists, who in all the old imperialist territories made themselves ardent champions of nationalism and revolution, However, with the subsequent winning of self-determination the true pur-pose of the Communists became apparent. It was to set up new shibboleths of "people's republics", in the various states — the further domination and enslavement of the Asian people.

Asians, as well as Arabs, are now eginning to realize that the Communists are not real revolutionaries at all, but counter-revolutionaries. tions, as distinct from their propaganda, especially in places like Laos, suggest that they fear the success of Asian nationalism and are working to prevent it, fostering tension and strife, since these harass and deny the newly independent countries the tranquility which they need to build their national

By LUCIE CARR The Tourist Rush Is On

Soviet jet TU-104 and we were puzzled to know how we were going to be received and what we would find there. Our friends were not very encouraging and had thought of many objections.

We arrived comfortably at Mosco airport after four and a half hours' flight. Before we left the plane a soldie collected our passports and dropped them into a canvas bag. They were to be handed to us before we left the Customs Office.

We had to give them back on arrival the hotel. Eventually they were taken from us and handed back again six times altogether. Passports had to be with the authorities each time we moved from one place to go to another.

At last we got on a coach and drove towards the town through beautifully kept avenues of trees, with no buildings sight until we reached the Lenin Hills, where the bus stopped to allow us to admire the really splendid panorama over Moscow.

Then the chief guide addressed us in good English: "Ladies and gentlemen, - Welcome to the Soviet Union. We shall be delighted to show you our country. Every morning my friend Lydia and myself shall be taking you by bus to show you the chief places of interest and shall bring you back to your hotel for lunch. After that you will be free to go wherever you like until next morning. You will be able to take your camera everywhere and take photo-graphs of anything you want except military objectives and of individuals who do not wish to be photographed."

Private Room

We then were driven to the Hotel Ukraine, the "biggest in Russia and in Europe." Nearly everybody had to share a room, even after having paid extra for a private room. I felt entitled to claim my due and I did not have to insist too much to get it.

My room was on the twenty eighth floor, clean, modern, even luxurious, with radio, a bathroom, and a beautiful view over the town and the river. Six large lifts were constantly sunning up and down, but it took 25 minutes to fetch a handkerchief if; you had forgot-stay was abundant but monotonous never properly hot and rather badly cooked. The shops were full of varied and appetizingly displayed foodstuffs: eggs, milk, cream, butter; and bread were the best I ever tasted anywhere, not to speak of the varieties of caviare and smoked sausages.

As soon as we discovered that we uld go to restaurants, we tried them all in turn, but we decided they were not worth the extra expense, being only slightly better than the hotel.

It was then that we tumbled upon the famous Georgian restaurant Aragvi. To have a meal in these cheerful cellars, among the lively Georgians and others, who enjoyed the delicious food really well cooked, was a treat quite worth the money.

After all, a meal with caviare, vodka served in a decanter shaschaliks, and a large helping of memorable ice-cream full of fruit, cost only 32s. I doubt whether such a meal could be had in a restaurant of comparable class anywhere else pieces of money.

These children are not begging; they always offer "my prreseunt" in exchange for anything so long as it is American. When we told them that we were English they dropped us quickly. We soon learned to say "American tourists" when we wanted some attention for getting theatre seats or a table at the restaurant.

Although the rule in the Soviet ion is that everybody is paid for the job, that things like cloakrooms are always free, and that no tip is allowed or accepted the American tourist insists on tipping as he does at home. I am not sure that he is not spoiling here something that is now so refresh-

TT'S been a really rather happy day, Rachel said to her husband as they prepared to go to bed. "I loved having little Susan here for a couple of hours this morning. Just playing in the kitchen while I was getting amch. Cynthia had go to town so I offered look after Susan. I feel sorry for these young mothers trying to shop with a two-year-old in tow, and it's a treat for me to have a little child to play with again." Susan had been fun,

Rachel thought, slipping Ruth off her shoes, and looking at a toe that might develop a corn if she didn't watch it. Two years old was a lovely stage, she thought, remembering the lack of self-con-sciousness and the air of extreme busy-ness,

For Susan had been busy all the time. She'd found the big brown paper bag of crusts destined for a neighbor's hens. And, like every small child who came to Rachel's house, she'd promptly seized a crust and trotted round the kitchen, gnawing savagely and scattering crumbs.

She'd found the "kitchen garden basket" and used it as a carrying cradle for her naked and not-too-pretty dolly. She and Rachel had done some very serious tucking in of Dolly with a little blue blanket and a gaily-striped hand-towel from the cupboard, "It was the being so serious," Rachel said to her husband. "Such solemn, womanly talk about how Dolly's feet must be snug and warm. And the wretched creature hasn't a stitch of clothes to her name. Cynthia's sure that all Susan's children will be nudists!

On, a sly foray into the living room,
Susan found the precious Wedgwood cookie jar, and had had to be distracted by a pheasant's tail feather.

"It's lucky I'm so untidy." Rachel said to her husband. "The feather was on my desk, so I tickled Susan's neck with it, and then pretended to be quite collapsed when she tickled mine.

"It's wonderful sometimes to forget the atomic age, and just play the fool with a lively child. Silly games that one wouldn't admit to people one didn't really know."

When the feather game pailed, Susan had found two little red trucks from a breakfast food package. Her laughter had changed then to frowning concentration because the connecting link was broken and she couldn't high trailer on to truck hitch trailer on to truck.

"Daddy fix it," she'd said with complete trust and confidence.

The little darling, Rachel had thought, and how young and vulnerable. For when Susan was older, Daddy wouldn't be able to fix the adult cares and sorrows. He'd have to sit by and watch."

"Life is so sad," Rachel said suddenly to her husband. "So sad, it's simply terrible."

YOURTH HEALTH

Anti-Polio Candy

Millions of people all over the world are now being given a polio vaccine made of three living, but harmless, viruses. The small dose can be taken by mouth. It is probable that it will give a protection which will last much longer than does that given by a killed virus vaccine. It is important, also, that the person who get the live virus are likely to pass on their immunity to others within the family, who have picked up the virus from them. Fortun-ately, it is a virus which has been "attenu-ated," or so weakened that it cannot produce any serious illness. Until this is made generally available here, mothers should be seeing to it that their children are given another injection of Salk vaccine.

* * * A while ago, Dr. Michael P. Mandarino, of Philadelphia, announced that he had been having excellent results, gluing the two ends of broken bones together. The patient tended to recover quickly so that they did not need to stay so long in the hospital. Naturally, in order to use the glue, a surgeon will have to cut down on the broken bone. Oftentimes today this is done, and the two pieces are held together, perhaps with a metal bar and some screws. In many cases, if the two ends can be brought into good osition and held there with a cast, that is ne best treatment. Many old people who fall and break the upper end of their long thigh bone are best treated with an oper-ation in which the loose end in the hip joint is nailed onto the shaft of the femur (thigh bone). With this operation the patient can get up out of bed sooner, and with this there is less of a tendency for the old person to become bed-ridden,

In a recent release from the World Health Organization, I find a page that interests me because the author agrees with me. Dr. P. Sivadon, a leading French psychiatrist, said that when he was a student and decided he wanted to go into psychiatry his professor objected and said, "Mental cases are scarce: I've only come across three the whole of my career!"

As Dr. Sivadon says so truly, mild mental cases are anything but scarce. Probably any good psychiatrist could go into the crowded reception room of any internist and quickly pick out one of two schizophrenics or manie-depressives. The important point that when the patient got in to see doctor the chances are that his mental troubles would not be suspected. Why not? Because the doctor never had any interest in psychiatry and never had much if any training in it. When he was in college, he never would pay any attentoin to psychiatry because he didn't expect in his practice ever to see a mentally disturbed patient; or he figured that if he should see one, he would immediately send him to a psychiatrist. As Dr. Sivadon says, if one will question a hundred patients in a mental hospital one will find that most of them had previously been going to physicians who had been giving them "shots" for this or that—a little anemia, or a "sluggish liver," or a "sluggish thyroid gland" Dr. Sivadon might have added that most of those who had complained of the abdominal pain that commonly goes with a psychosis, had had their abdomen explored surgically to no

What bothers Dr. Sivadon, as it has been distressing me, is that very few of the doctors who took care of the 100 patients as they were going insane, had seemed to recognize the serious mental breakdown that was impending. Most of the close relatives of the patient, also, even when they saw, as they could not have helped seeing, that their loved one was mentally disturbed, had refused to face this fact, and had con-cealed it as long as they could. The last thing they wanted was to have a relative of theirs put into a mental hospital. This was a "disgrace" that they all hoped they could avoid,

Throughout 75 professional fights, nearly all of them wars. Carmen took his lumps even when winning. While he divided decisions with Sugar Ray Robinson in 30 tough rounds, the lickings they took did neither any good.

Basilio might well take a tip from Rocky Marciano, a larger edition of the same type of fighter, and quit while he is still in one co-ordinated piece. There isn't any sense in his waiting until he's scrambled like an egg.

at he get out in time. It was fitting that a couple of clean clouters like Fullmer and Basilio should give the beak-busting business a boost just when the sour science needed it most. They made the oustomers forget, for the time being at least, the charges and counter-charges growing out of the Ingemar Johansson Floyd Patterson promotional mess. Through the years it has been demonstrated that there is nothing wrong with prize fighting that a good fight won't cure.

Fullmer's remarkable transformation from an awkward cub fighter into a boxer with a pattern and moves and combinations puts the middleweights back in business. Now the 160-pound division has a champion who will fight and not attempt to pick spots and demand all the money like Robinson.

Now if some promoter could get Floyd Patterson busy while awaiting his return heavyweight championship match with Ingemar Johansson next spring or summer things would be considerably brighter. Because his challengers were so carefully handpicked, starting with Pete Rademach Patterson did the game Irreparable damage as champion.

Patrick will undoubtedly be as dependable as ever in the all - important quarterback's role, but that provides him with one of his minor worries. He's still looking for a capable understudy. Another one of Patrick's worries at the moment hap-pens to be the Surrey team.

Streaking Indians Can't Gain on Sox

Tribe Sweeps Twin Bill From Orioles

By Associated Press
You might say Cleveland
Indians have been streaking along at a standstill in the American League pennant chase.

They've won six in a row seven of their last eight and 15 of the last 20 since Aug. 18 but are right where they were when they started—4½ games behind Chicago's, first place White Sox.

The Sox, 17-7 in that same span, won their fourth in a row and reduced their magic number to 12 by beating Washington 5-1 Wednesday night as the two contenders opened their last trips through the east.

Cleveland gained a half game by sweeping a twi-night doubleheader at Baltimore, beating the Orioles 3-2 and

BREAKS SLUMP

The big game Wednesday went to Don Drysdale, the righthander who has lost six games in a row and was on the spot in any hopes for a flag for Los Angeles Dodgers. He broke the slump with his first victory in a month, get-ting it with a three-hitter that beat Philadelphia Phillies 1-0.

The big play was Wally Moon's, giving Drysdale and the Dodgers their run. He did it with nervy base-running, moving from first to second on a foul pop, and then scor-ing on Gil Hodges' single. The big hit was Bobby Avi-la a grand-slam home run

Ravages of War

The ravages of war are all about us even as I write and look from my apartment win dow; scars such as bombed areas which are parking lots; some marked with faded signs denoting them to be bomb "shelters." My native Liverpool brought uncontrolled tears which softened the harsh and grim grime and dirt which is still, seemingly, its hall-mark. There, ruins still stand, windows are blackened and shattered and the hotel porter casually tells of a "shel-ter," just a block away which was "hit" and wiped out 2,000 ter," just a block away which was "hit" and wiped out 2,000 which tell you to "press but-lives in one blast during the eight consecutive nights of heavy bombing which was and take for granted that part of their years of ordeal.

How do you judge these people? Is it not excusable that, even 15 or more years later, some still say "well what do you expect after such a bombing?" Or do you say without a sense of proportion that the excuse for today's crowding, an evident weakening of public morality, lacka-daisacal public services, among other things, cannot always be the war. Would you judge public and economic recovery here against the same factors in West Germany which was heavily hombed or even more confined than Britain?

Disgusting,

Perhaps I have been too critical to bring in public morality.
But most of the London metro-able wordly sin of exaggera-tion. But we, too, have seen these things. We have seen couples in attitudes disgusting in public view, scenes terrible even to a newspaperman of more than 40 years of writing on the human scene and emo-tions; couples oblivious of the fact that, in broad daylight, little children played but a few feet away and parents looked on with apparent unconcern.

What of top hotels which seem to still use "quill pen" bookkeeping procedures, chainpull toilets, "lifts" that run spasmodically and are marked people have some intelligence? Why does tradition still dominate so that it is not uncom mon to see a bowler hatted, morning coated and striped panted gentleman carrying an umbrella and briefcase, solemnly wait on a bicycle for the traffic light to change in Piccadilly Circus during the mebound office rush?

Wild Abandon

There are many other things which are idiosyncracies and strange to the western mind. The answers I do not know but they will probably arise Japan and its crowded living in the weeks to come. Not even the American with his high-powered car has the wild abandon of the British open ator of a miniscule car. And yet, despite deplorable na-tional accident statistics, in statistics, in some 700 miles of driving here dented or the sign of an acci

> Perplexing, these British? Definitely, Warmhearted and hospitable, particularly the "bobbies" whose patience a visitor must try to the point of exhaustion? Very definitely. But why is there such seeming content with crowded and often deplorable housing, with chology that things are rough today but are always better tomorrow, so let's take the family for a picnic? Why? And I think of an old couple in a darkened little house on the street of a small country city, existing and that is the word — on a small pension, oblivious apparently to the world outside their doors and its advancement. And I wonder how many more there are like them. We have them in Canada but, thank heaven > they do not accept their lot willingly and unprotestingly. The British? Grand people I'm sure. I only hope that available time and circumstances will let me understand better and with an even deeper sense of the humanities, these people who will ever be the kin of my childhood, the ad miration of my war memor and my problem of today as an enquiring visitor.

100,000 Read B.C. Booster Around World

The B.C. recreation department's new color magazine, "Beautiful British Columbia," is sold in nine countries and has a total circulation of 100. 000, says Clyde Herrington, its editor.

The first issue, published Sept. 1, is being sold in Cey-lon, Honduras, Sweden, Wast Germany, Britain, the United States, Canada, Hawaii and Australia.

Retail price in Canada and the U.S. is 50 cents, but prices reaching as high as 10 shillings in Australia where the pound is worth less than the Brit.sh pound.

"We believe our publication is giving B.C. better publicity abroad than it has ever had," Mr. Herrington said. "We have had letters from far and wide complimenting us on our night standard of color pho ography.

The first issue consists of 48 glossy pages bearing 120 natural color high-fidelity views of the province. Among natural them are a vivid shot of a sunset off the Dallas Road and artistic views of Victoria and the Sooke waterfront.

Many of the photos taken editor Herrington, using a 140 degree Panon camera, and B.C. government photographer Dick Colby.

Mr. Herrington, veteran Vancouver photographer, was engaged to edit the magazine after he put up the idea to Recreation Minister Earle Westwood.

"Many of our photos have been taken in places where the white man has never been before," he said. For in stance, Dick Colby has just returned from Cold Fish Lake in the far northwest corner

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

RANDOM HARVEST-Followers of this column know that my reviews covering CBC's Sunday night offering "Playhouse U.K.," have ranged from warm to lukewarm. So often the English plays are dated, stagey and contrived.

TV TEE-HEES

However, I would like now to bow tolast Sunday's offering, "Mr. Browne Comes Home," as being superb. Paul Jones' play coupled with the acting of Donald Pleasence and Gwen Watford in fact combined to make the vehicle one of the most moving shows of the year. Pleasence's "Captain' was almost Chaplinish. He was a buffoon who wrung the heart out like a cast-off glove while he

for a Teepee ... I phoned was making you smile through tears of pity. All the while he was indicating class snobbery for what it is something unpleasant, a dirty smell arising from an ancient gutter.

"You have the wrong

Although the play was moving from beginning to end as a good play should be, "Mr. Browne Comes Home" reached its apex in the proposal scene when Browne, somewhat the worse for wear, owing to an overlong stay at the pub, arrives at the home of Anna Cooksley to propose marriage and present his humble ring. There he meets Anna's old-school-tie hubby and. much to his dismay, resistance in his clumsy, pitiable love-making.

It was in this scene that Pleasence rose to app able heights in his art. But the scene, in spite of him, would have bogged if Miss Watford, as Anna, had not the necessary skill to measure the moment. But she did and thus proved herself to be an actress of merit, a young woman who will be heard of in the years to come.

Well done, Playhouse U.K. and the CBC!

* * ANOTHER EXCELLENT contribution to last Sun day evening's viewing was CBC s"Long Shot." It, like Playhouse U.K., has had its ups and downs during the summer. Just as the little girl with the curl, when it was good it was very, very good but when it was bad it was horrid.

But last Sunday "Long Shot" mentors wiped the state with a double dose of Mr. Clean, Banished were the little leaguers that all too often hold up the game belief Putty. Brick and Mortar. In their place were the likes of Uncle Sam's No. 1 flay-boy, Mort Sahl, whose monologue on the state of New York ("Only two kinds of speople inhabit New York—police and teen-agers, nobody in between") and the traffic snarl on a California main artery, was as awakening as a dry shave with a chorus girl's razor.

And last, but far from least, were the two offerings by the "Jubilee" company—professional, alert and entertaining. These rounded out "Long Shot" to a proud half-hour over which all Canadian viewers can
